REMARKS

This is UNEVALUATED Information

25X1

1. On 1 September 1953, Installation VI at Droegeheide quartered a tank unit equipped with T-34 tanks and a unit equipped with 76.2-mm SP guns. The latter unit consisted of a headquarters platoon, 5 gun companies and a maintenance company. The units mentioned were quartered in permanent buildings in Section A of the installation. 25X1

2. Section B quartered the headquarters of an artillery regiment which used cross-country vehicle and repair shop truck 25X1
the permanent quarters of Section B were to be occupied, on 12 September, by the 3 battalions of the artillery regiment, an S-4 (AT unit) and an S-5 (AAA unit). Prior to 12 September, these units had been quartered in tents. During the time of observation they were being trained with 76.2-mm, 122-mm and 152-mm guns. The tent camp involved also quartered an AAA unit which occasionally practiced firing with 85-mm guns at Jaegerbrueck.<sup>1</sup>

3. Section C of Installation VI was unoccupied because the buildings were still under construction. Section C was expected to be ready for occupation in the late fall of 1953.<sup>1</sup>

4. On 20 September, 25X1 Section A of Installation IX at Spechtberg near Torgelow quartered Tank Regiment Eckert which had a ration strength of 40 officers and about 550 men. The regiment consisted of 3 battalions with 3 companies to each battalion, a headquarters company, a command company (Fuehrungskompanie), a repair shop company, an engineer unit, an AAA unit equipped with 12.7-mm AA machine guns, a reconnaissance unit equipped with armored scout cars and a rifle unit equipped with submachine guns. The tank companies consisted of 3 platoons 25X1 3 tanks to each platoon, besides a command tank. During the period of observation, training on tanks was being conducted; the main stress was laid on mounting the tanks and the getting ready for action. This operation was performed in about 15 seconds. Occasionally advance combat practice firing with machine guns was 25X1 practiced from the tanks.<sup>2</sup>

5. On 20 September, Section B of Installation IX quartered Tank Regiment Schmidt. For training purposes, the regiment was equipped with 2 or 3 JS-II tanks which mounted 152-mm guns. When firing with live ammunition was being practiced, 25X1 the second round fired from such a gun pierced the hull of a
